I wonder why cactus plants don't need to be watered very much...

Cactus plants store water inside when it does rain, so they can go for a long time without needing to be watered. They just take water from their supply when they need it.

I wonder why volcanoes erupt...

Volcanoes erupt when magma, which is found about 20 to 100 miles below the Earth's surface, gives off many gases. When the gases get very hot, they make great amount of pressure and the magma pushes the gases to the Earth's surface. The magma and the gases go to the weakest place on the surface, and then explode.

I wonder what chocolate is made of...

Chocolate is made from the seeds of cacao trees. This tropical tree is found mainly on the west coast of America and in Brazil.
